Actor Bio:

David Hernandez began his career by chance, almost like a hollywood type story. He was discovered by Silvia Giannini and Jack Ginay, producer and director at NBC Studios in Chicago. Both NBC professionals were in the hispanic neighborhoods of west Chicago shooting footage for a docu-drama that would air nationwide. A program that introduces that hispanic culture to to the rest of the world. David was Interviewed regarding the neighborhood he was found to be in, Mrs. Giannini & Mr. Ginay saw great potential for this 14 year old Hispanic that had no fear of the camera and a way about him. His knowledge of the neighborhood and personality soon won them over; they had to have his talent in the upcoming national docu-drama being produced by NBC. David did have to go head to head with seasoned child actors of his timeand was able to earn the role of Carlos, a lead in "Still a Stranger". As stated by Director Elliott Silverstein (Night Of Courage 1989) "David is a one in a million natural ator". David was invited to audition on the spot! Just off the corner of Rockwell and Augusta in the Humboldt Park Area of Chicago. At the time David believed that this was a one-time opportunity until a talent agent (Myrna Salizar) hounded him and actually drove around the neighborhood looking for her next promising atalent. Mrs. Salazar spoke to the neighborhood locals in the Humboldt Park and Logan Square neighborhoods searching for David, seeking to interest him in registering with her agency. David Hernandez was her star child for many years until David pulled back from the industry for several years to care for his ailing father. After his father passed in the mid 90's David was then again invited to become involved in front of and behind the camera as a producer and host of Coqui-Tv. A bilingual television program that has been successfully on the air for over 19 years. Today David Hernandez has been easing back into the film industry with 4 Feature films under his belt in less than a year (2008). All speaking roles. David Hernandez since the age of 14 decided that he would never accept any extra work. Even today, David will not accept any extra work as he feels it would just clutter his resume. David is owner and president of Markets International Inc. A Mortgage Fraud Investigation Company. Mr. Hernandez has always been self employed. He can work his own schedule and may available for your next big production. For more information Please contact David Hernandez official Publicist Veronica Resa @ 773-620-6370
